Explore Smith Antiques

Smith Antiques has been a historic Williamsburg landmark since 1942. Located near Colonial Williamsburg off old Richmond Road (HWY 60) our spacious and ever changing store is the largest antique space in the area. We have over 250 different vendors that bring a wide assortment of products to our large facility.

Smith Antiques was an idea that started when the extended Smith family decided to sell many of their collectibles. For many years 88 year Grandpa Smith collected woodworking tools and a variety of mechanical items. His wife Nana Smith thought it was a good idea to pass these unique items to a younger generation since their garage and workshop were overflowing. To help get things started she agreed to sell her antique plate and china cup collections. Once they started many members of their extended family including brothers, sisters, cousins and nieces and nephews became involved. It became a family adventure. They opened the first Smith Antiques store and were immediately welcomed to the Williamsburg antique community.

Nana Smith's inspiration spread

Nana Smith's inspiration for making space around the house became a topic of great interest to her friends. Other families asked to be involved. The Smith family decided to expand their store by incorporating the wares of many other families in the Williamsburg area. Now there are more than 250 regular vendors with overflowing stall along isle after isle of items. Now generations of local families bring an usually wide variety of items to Smith Antiques. Please get in touch with us if you or your family want to join our family tradition and share your collectables with others. Nana Smith's inspiration spread
